Art Unit: 3632

This is the second office action for serial number 09/665,821, Adjustable Keyboard Tray, filed on September 20, 2000.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

Claim 17 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Claim 17 depends on a canceled claim, namely claim 11. For the purpose of this Office action claim 17 is assumed to depend upon claim 14.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 2, 6, 12-14 and 17 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over U.S. Patent No. 4,616,798 to Smeenge in view of U.S. Patent No. 5,732,910 to Martin.

Smeenge discloses an adjustable keyboard tray comprising a tray (11) having a top plate (not numbered) and a bottom plate (not numbered), and mounting plate (50). The mounting plate is secured to the adjustable keyboard tray by a retaining bracket (the lower flange beneath the plate 50). The top and bottom plate form a cavity (not numbered) and are made from plastic or synthetic resin. However, Smeenge fails to disclose the tray being formed from two separate elements, namely a top and bottom plate that is welded together.

Martin teaches a keyboard tray comprising a top (21) and bottom plates (23) form a cavity therebetween. The top and bottom plates are formed of a polymeric material (col. 4, line 4+). A pocket is created along a side of the keyboard tray that is aligned with an opening (33) through the side of the tray to receive and secure a mouse bracket (39) which supports a mouse platform. The mouse bracket is releasably secured in the pocket by a tab (53) and is received in a slot (52) on the mouse bracket. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have substituted the keyboard tray for the keyboard tray as taught by Martin as alternate means of supporting the keyboard thereupon and for supporting a mouse.

Claims 3, 6 and 7-10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over U.S. Patent No. 6,123,304 to Bateson in view of U.S. Patent No. 5,732,910 to Martin. Bateson discloses an adjustable keyboard tray comprising a tray (18) and a mounting plate (12). The mounting plate secures the adjustable keyboard tray to the bracketing mechanism (14). The mounting plate is secured to the adjustable keyboard tray by a retaining bracket (26) such that the adjustable keyboard tray can slide in a lateral direction substantially perpendicular to the direction of translation by the bracketing mechanism. However, Bateson fails to disclose the tray being formed from two separate elements, namely a top and bottom plate that is integrally formed.

Martin teaches a keyboard tray comprising a top (21) and bottom plates (23) form a cavity therebetween. The top and bottom plates are formed of a polymeric material (col. 4, line 4+). A pocket is created along a side of the keyboard tray that is aligned with an opening (33) through the side of the tray to receive and secure a mouse bracket (39) which supports a mouse platform. The mouse bracket is releasably secured in the pocket by a tab (53) and is received in a slot (52) on the mouse bracket. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have substituted the keyboard tray as taught for the keyboard tray as taught by Bateson as alternate means of supporting the keyboard thereupon and for supporting a mouse.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 4, 5, 15 and 16 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Claims 19-27 are allowed.

The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter: the prior art of record fails to teach the retaining bracket is mounted in a recessed mounting area formed along a bottom surface of the bottom plate creating a channel therebetween that secures the mounting plate.
